

FLORIDA ENERGY COMMISSION

Rob Vickers

Rob Vickers, the Florida Energy Commission's Policy Director, earned his bachelor's degree in Political Science and his Master's Degree of Science in Planning from Florida State University. Before joining the Commission, he worked for the Florida Senate staffing several committees, including the Committees on Community Affairs and Transportation. His experience includes developing and evaluating options to assist members in achieving policy goals, legislative drafting, staff-report research and development, and committee administration.